A THOUGHT

If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us.—1 John 1:8.

We deceive and flatter no one by such delicate artifices as we do ourselves.—Schopenhauer.

FOR A ROAD TO FONDE

Pretably no other bill before the legislature so fully concerns Bell county as the one, presented in both the Senate and House, providing for a road from the Pineville pike, near Highlandtown, across the mountains to Fondre and Pruden, rich Tennessee mining centers.

A survey of this road has already been made and the county has appropriated a part of the county fund, issue to help in the expense of construction. The bills in the legislature provide for this road, twelve or fourteen miles in length, being created as a part of the primary system of roads of the Commonwealth of Kentucky. This will, of course, insure state aid for the road.

The mining sections around Fondre and Pruden are among the richest in this whole region. The mines run with comparative regularity and the coal is of a quality equaling any in the Harlan fields. While they are in Tennessee they are owned by Kentucky men, mostly, they are right on the border of Bell county and they are worked by miners most of whom came from and have relatives around Middlesboro.

The distance to Fondre is only about twelve miles, but because of the impassable condition of the mountain route the only way they can get to Middlesboro is to come around by Jellico, more than twice as far, to spend out to invest.

With the opening of this proposed road, Middlesboro and Pineville, representing Kentucky, will get this business and will be richly benefited by it. And Kentuckyans will have a direct route into Tennessee by this way, cutting off many miles. Every one in Bell county is for the road. That goes without saying. Surely every one in Kentucky will be equally for it.

In considering this matter, as in all others of legislative measures relating to this section, great credit must be given Senator White Moss and Representative Joe Bosworth, our representatives in the General Assembly. These two men have been most diligent in safeguarding their section's interests. We are indeed fortunate to have as our representatives men so well fitted for their places and with the high standing among their colleagues which these men have.

"MONTICELLO" AS AN INTOXICANT

The Daily News is in receipt of a letter from Garrett and Company, Inc., manufacturers of a drug product known as Old Monticello Tonic, protesting a recent editorial carried in these columns in regard to the use of this same tonic for leverage purposes in Middlesboro.

We quote a paragraph from the letter: "We beg to advise that Old Monticello is a combination of Magnesium, Manganese, Sodium and Calcium Glycine, Phosphates, together with Beer Tonic, from which the product gets its protein content. These ingredients are added to malted wine which has always been known to have a great tonic value. The alcohol needed for the preservation of this tonic is the natural alcohol which is in the wine and which was caused by the natural fermentation. There is nothing poisonous or ever injurious in our preparation and we are willing to submit the formula to any reputable physician, for we believe that he will agree with us that our preparation has a great therapeutic value."

Undoubtedly the manufacturers of this tonic are conscientious in it and undoubtedly their product is helpful as a tonic. But it is very possible that these manufacturers do not know the way in which the use of their product is being perverted. Our only fault with them is that they do not keep closer check on their retail distributors. These places know when a product is being used as an intoxicant by the demand they have for it. The manufacturers should be able to check up on retailers in the same way.

While the product, used as a tonic, may not be injurious, when it is used as an intoxicant it is injurious and the distributors know that it is. And if the manufacturers do not keep check with the retailers, of its use in this way, distribution should and probably will be curtailed by law.

SUBMIT IT TO THE PEOPLE

Refer the bond issue to the people, the source of all power, is the admission of the Oldham Era in last week's edition. As the Era says, the legislature cannot authorize a bond issue. It can only refer the question to the people with its stamp and approval or it can prevent the people from expressing themselves by denouncing it as not worthy of further trouble. The Era editorial follows:

"It is unnecessary to read the papers closely to learn that one of the biggest questions before the state legislature now in session is the question of the proposed bond issue for roads, State University, the charitable institutions, etc. And the question is not whether a bond issue shall or shall not be voted, but simply a question of submitting the proposal to the people for their decision. The legislature cannot authorize a bond issue—its only power is to order that a vote be taken upon the question by the people, in whom is vested the power to issue state bonds."

"We admit that there are strong arguments for and against a bond issue, but that should not prevent the legislature from authorizing an election. Arguments for submission and against submission are in order, of course, before the legislature, but it seems to us that little time ought to be consumed by them. The question is going to be submitted some time, why not now? There is plenty of time between now and November to present both sides of the question to the people. No member of the legislature who votes for submission is bound to support the bond issue proposal in November. We hope that the question will be submitted so that it can be settled. There is certainly no harm in referring the question to the people, the source of all power."

FRIENDS

Most any decent sort of folk
Will help you when you're straggled and broke.

If you are facing pain and woe,
Most anybody that you know
Will treat you pretty white and fair
If they're convinced you're on the square.

But—get what I am driving at?
A friend does something more than that.

A friend doesn't have to weigh you much.

To test your honesty and such;
A friend knows faults and virtues, too.

And takes them as a part of you.
He tries to keep you out of trouble,
But when you're in—why, that goes double.

And all your follies he endures,
Because he is a friend of yours.

A friend is one with whom you sit
And do not need to talk a bit;
Who needs no chatter to reveal
Approximately how you feel.

Who, when your secret heart's unfurled,
Won't rush right out and tell the world.

Who's not afraid to step right in
And tell you what a boob you've been.

But whose devotion it won't jar
However much a fool you are.

Don't you believe the birds who fret
That loyal friends are seldom met.
There is the man who hasn't got
Someone who loves him quite a lot.

Whether he's any good or not,
Someone who's faithful to the end,
Through thick and thin—and that's a friend!

WHAT'S GOING ON IN THE WORLD

TEAPOT DOME—CHANGE IN RUS-SIA—BRITISH POLITICS

Before Albert H. Fall, as secretary of the interior, leased (or, according to Senator Walsh, father of the investigation, virtually sold) the government oil lands at Teapot Dome, Wyo., to the H. P. Sinclair interests and at Elk Hills, Calif., to the E. L. Doheny interests, he seemed very hard up. Couldn't even pay his taxes. Anyway he didn't. Afterward, he had money enough to buy a big new rind and make improvements costing altogether $180,000. A faraway estimate. Was there any connection between the oil leases and Fall's improved financial status? That's what the pending investigation is intended to find out.

Fall's Story
Fall first said he bought the ranch with $100,000 he borrowed from E. L. McLean, the newspaper owner. McLean said it was true he gave Fall a $100,000 check, but got it back again, uncashed.

Archie Roosevelt
The late Theodore Roosevelt's son, Archie, was an official of one of the Sinclair oil companies. He heard from G. D. Wahlberg, Sinclair's secretary, of a $200,000 payment to the former of Fall's ranch. This made him so suspicious that, mindful of his own reputation, he quit the Sinclair job and told his story to the senators who were investigating the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills cases.

Doheny Heard From
Then Doheny was heard from. Appearing before the investigators, he related it was he who loaned $100,000 to Fall to buy the ranch. He said he did it because he and Fall were very good friends. He did it some months before the Elk Hills lease was made and denied any connection between the loan and the lease. (Doheny had said, but this was before the investigation, that he hoped to make $100,000,000 on Elk Hills).

Colonel J. W. Zevy
Next came Colonel J. W. Zevy, Washington lawyer for Sinclair. He told the senators of a $25,000 loan, in liberty bonds, to Fall. He said the loan was made by Sinclair but through him. After the Teapot Dome lease, like Doheny, he denied any connection between the loan and the lease.

More to Come
This seems to leave a good deal still to be explained. Fall said he got $100,000 from McLean, but, according to McLean, the check wasn't cashed. Fall said he never got "and" couldn't either from Sinclair or Doheny on account of any oil lease or upon any other account whatsoever. According to Zevy and Doheny he did, maybe not on account of any oil lease, but at any rate on some account. Also, what about the $25,000 Archie Roosevelt mentions, and the difference between the $125,000 Fall appears to have received from Sinclair and Doheny and the $180,000 that Caraway thinks he spent?

Others Blamed
Originally Teapot Dome and Elk Hills were the navy's. Secretary Denby turned them over to Fall, as secretary of the interior, to manage. Some senators say this was very careless of Denby. They blame Assistant Secretary of the Navy Theodore Roosevelt Jr., too. Fall is found likewise with Attorney General Daugherty, on the ground that he wasn't alert enough as the government's lawyer, to protect its interests.

What Next?
President Coolidge announces lawyers (both Republicans and Democrats) will be hired to sue for annulment of the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills leases and prosecute anybody guilty of corruption.

Russia's Fate
With the death of Nikolai Lenin (his real name was Vladimir Il'yich Ulanov) the general guess is that the real ruler of Russia will pass to the veteran communist, Stalin—but can he hold it long? Much doubt is expressed. Recognized as a sincere and, in some respects, capable man, he isn't regarded as anywhere nearly Lenin's equal in real statesmanship. If he loses his grip, nobody ventures to predict what direction Russia may take. Trotsky is out of favor with the Bolsheviks.

Labor in Power

Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, resigned the British premiership, as expected. As was expected also, Ramsay MacDonald, Labor leader, succeeded him. Under the English system, MacDonald has to have a majority in Parliament to remain premier. There aren't enough Labor members for this. He must get the Liberals to help him. They're willing to do so, as long as routine governmental business

PRETTY MINING VILLAGE NESTLES IN LETCHER HILLS, ONCE BATTLE GROUND REYNOLDS-WRIGHT FEUDS

As picturesque in history of early Kentucky mountain life as it is rich in scenery, the little mining village of Seco, in Letcher county, stands out as one of the cleanest "coal towns" in Eastern Kentucky. It nestles between two mountains and is on the banks of Boone's Fork of the North Fork of the Kentucky river. It occupies the site of many feudal battles between the Reynolds and Wright families. Here it was many years ago the lean mountain folk settled their real and imaginary arguments in their own way. But the march of commerce has done away with all that and today the scene of those mountain battles is occupied by one of the most progressive, socially and industrially, of Kentucky mining towns.

Social Laws Iron-Clad
In fact, social laws in Seco are iron-clad. The management of the mines is transacted, but will support no radical measures. So, though MacDonald and several of his ministers are Socialists, it can't but be a rather toneless government. MacDonald's first step was to propose putting the mine under the League of Nations, saying frankly the French policy there worries and "exasperates" the English.

BAPTISTS ADOPT RESOLUTIONS ON BIBLE READING HILL

At a meeting of the First Baptist Church of Middlesboro the following resolution was offered and adopted: Whereas, There are now pending in the Kentucky Senate and in the House of Representatives of the Kentucky legislature two bills, Senate Bill No. 21, and House Bill No. 11, providing for the reading of the Word of God, the Bible, in the public schools of Kentucky; and

Whereas, We believe that the Bible is the source of all true knowledge and wisdom and should at least be read in our public schools, therefore,

Be it resolved, That we heartily approve said bills and request our Senators, Hon. W. L. Moss, and our Representative, Hon. J. F. Bosworth, to vote for said bills and to exert all proper influence they can to secure the passage of same.

Be it resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to our said Senators and Representative, and published in the papers or the city.

coal mines will not employ a miner who indulges in intoxicants. The commissaries do not sell cigarettes. During baseball season Sunday games are prohibited. In fact, Seco is considered the most religious mining village in Eastern Kentucky. The town boasts of good schools, churches, Sunday school classes at which every villager attends, clubs, ladies' aid societies and everything that goes to make up a model town.

Henry Fleming, manager of the mines, is given most of the credit for Seco getting off on the right foot and keeping in step. He erected a church and invited all the employees and their families to attend. Soon the church was crowded to capacity. The Southeast Coal company erected beautiful homes for the workers, with spacious lawns and ample space for the family garden. Prizes are awarded to the winners for the most profitable gardens. Beautiful hedges, children with bright faces, clean, modern administration buildings offer a strange contrast to what one usually has in mind when thinking of a mining town. One would never suspect Seco of being a mining village were it not for the ripples and mining buildings.

Presents, Happy Scene

When one visits the village in the spring, children are heard, at play and birds singing, orchards in bloom, gardens of flowers with the dull buzz of the bee as they make their rounds from flower to flower.

The South East Coal Company's mine employs 50 men and has an output of 2,000 tons of coal daily. The town has paved streets, good water facilities, a fire department, ball park and population of 1,500.

In 1915 the South East Coal company bought the property from Bill "Lance" Wright, and clearing the valley of timber and brush, grading was started and like bubbles from a fountain, beautiful homes sprang up, one by one. At last one of Kentucky's cleanest and moral mining villages came into existence out of the mud and slush where once only the shot from the rifle of a feudist broke the stillness of the hill country.—Louisville Herald.

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton
AN INKY RIDDLE

He's truly most obliging.

Here's another riddle, kiddies, that the little lady asked. If you are wee, little maybe you can't guess it. But if you are about half-past seven or maybe eight years old, you ought to know it first crack out of the box. But really it's kind of a riddle for every old person—say twelve or fifteen, or around there? When the postman begins to bring you letters you just have to answer, or when somebody has sent you a Christmas present from out of town, you just have to sit down and say you are much obliged for. And that reminds me! I do hope you have said thank you for all the gifts you got for Christmas whether out of town or in town.

Well, here's the riddle:

"I have a little servant,
No longer than my hand,
But though he is so very small,
I find no fault with him at all.
He jumps at my command."

"He's truly most obliging,
He answers all my mail,
When letters come, that very day,
He sends an answer right away,
Quite promptly—without fail."

"He doesn't know his A B C's,
He cannot read a word,

And yet he writes and writes and writes,
In spelling words he quite delights,
Though some he's never heard.

"He didn't come from Africa,
And yet he's black as ink,
But that's a word I should not say,
Because it gives the joke away,
It's both his name and drink!"

"His trough of ink is on my desk,
And there his nose he dips,
I wish he hadn't such a thirst,
It's really of the very worst,
He sips and sips and sips."

"He's got a camel's tummy,
That holds a lot of drink,
But when he's on a writing trip,
He soon gets dry and has to dip."

What is his name now? Think!

"It's a pen!" cried Nick, who hadn't guessed a riddle for a long time.

"Right!" said the little lady. "Oh to be perfectly right, it's a fountain pen, that is the only kind of a pen that can hold a lot of ink at once. It's the kind I write all my letters with. The prize is a pen, Nick, and here is one you may have for your very own."

That was all for that day.

However, Comma

(By James W. Dean)

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—If you would observe the way the world goes, consider our letters and our drama.

Leading the list of best sellers, other works of fiction, is Papilio's "Life of Christ." During the past five years only one other book of general nature has sold at a faster rate than the "Life of Christ" is selling now.

The biggest individual success of the stage this season is "Outward Bound," a play dealing with the hereafter. The biggest commercial success now on tour (with the possible exception of "Abie's Irish Rose") is Channing Pollock's "The Fool." That play's popularity lies directly in its appeal to the religious nature of its audiences.

All of this seems to indicate a prevailing spirit of religious unrest, a state of affairs also manifested in the controversy between so-called modernists and fundamentalists in the churches of America.

The external impetus given to our spiritual nature by the war having died out, we are becoming introspective. We are trying to learn what makes the wheel of life go round—and what happens after it stops.

And this religious fervor is by no means only a drumming upon our emotions. Man is striving to learn the eternal why of things by clear processes of thought.

Thus you find that the most widely read non-fiction book in years is the "Outline of History." "The Dance of Life," Havelock Ellis' analytical study of the things which govern human existence, is in the list of best sellers. James Harvey Robinson's "The Mind in the Making" has returned to the list of the elect.

Other books which have proved very popular in the past few years are "The Story of Mankind," "The Outline of Science," "The Growth of the Soul" and "The Story of the Bible." This may be an age of world unrest, but that unrest comes only from man's endeavor to find himself.

The human mind has reached its greatest development since man parted company with the ape.

SISTER Mary's KITCHEN

Dried Vegetables

(Unless otherwise specified, these recipes are planned for four persons). Dried or dehydrated vegetables, whether home cured or commercially prepared, have many delicious possibilities.

They lose none of their natural sweetness in the process of drying. There are two good ways of preparing dried vegetables. They are soaked for a long time in cold water or put into rapidly boiling water and kept at a high temperature until tender. I prefer the long soaking in cold water for several hours and then gentle simmering until tender.

This method allows the vegetables to absorb their natural amount of water and swell to their natural size. But the rapidly boiling process is desirable when time is an object. Keep in mind, however, that dried ripe beans must soak at least eight hours in cold water. This is true of any vegetable rich in protein.

Dried Corn

Dried corn can be used just as canned corn and has a rich sort of nutty flavor entirely lacking in the canned product. It is seldom necessary to add sugar to dried sweet corn. Let the corn soak over night or five or six hours in cold water to more than covered. As soon as the water is absorbed, add more. Then simmer an hour, adding water to prevent burning. Or pour rapidly boiling water over dried corn and boil rapidly for two hours. Add boiling water as needed. The corn should be tender when ready to season and should be solid enough to allow the addition of milk.

Baked Spinach

Two cups dehydrated spinach, 1 cup dried mushrooms, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup white sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon paprika.

Pour boiling water to cover over spinach. Let stand five minutes and drain. Pour over cold water to more than cover and bring slowly to the boiling point. Cook until tender and water is absorbed. Soak mushrooms in cold water for an hour. Drain and pour over boiling water. Drain. Melt butter, add mushrooms cut in small pieces and sauté five minutes. Add butter and mushrooms to spinach which has been chopped and seasoned with salt and paprika. Add white sauce and turn into well-buttered baking dish. Bake 20 minutes in a hot oven.

Dried Pea Timbales

One cup dried peas, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 sprigs dried mint, 4 tablespoons milk, 1-3 teaspoon pepper.

Wash peas and let stand over night in cold water to more than cover. In the morning add a pinch of soda about the size of a pea and bring slowly to the boiling point. Add mint. Simmer gently until the peas are tender and the water is absorbed. Rub through a sieve. Beat egg with milk, salt and pepper. Add to pea pulp with butter and mix well. Turn into buttered molds, cover with buttered paper and bake in a pan of hot water until firm. It will take about half an hour. Serve with one cup of white sauce to which one-half cup of dried crooked carrots have been added.

Mock Oysters

One cup dried corn, 1 cup milk, 3-4 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon pepper, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons butter.

Soak corn over night or several hours in cold water. Or cook in boiling water for two hours. Cook until the water is almost all cooked away. Beat eggs with a duster, heater until light. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, salt and pepper. Add milk to corn. Stir in dry ingredients and butter. Beat well and add eggs. Drop from the spoon into hot fat or butter in a spider and fry brown first on one side and then on the other.

Serve with chicken or pork, or as the main dish for luncheon.

EACH MEMBER OF FRANK SILVER COMPANY A STAR

Few theatrical or musical attractions of recent years can boast of such an array of individual talent as that which comprises the Frank Silver Company which is booked for the Manring Theatre in this city tonight. In assembling our company," said Mr. Silver recently in an interview, "we sought to engage artists of the unusual type. Certainly no greater dance star is to be found in any country than Stephanie Kovak, whose amazing versatility has brought her fame both in Europe and America, and who, although still only a young girl, has blazed her way to stardom in an incredibly short time. Likewise, it is difficult to conceive of a more fascinating and charming singing comedienne than Miss Bobbe Arnet, who has been called the "wonder girl of syncopated melody." Whether in blues, or jazz or character singing, Miss Arnet seems equally at home, and her great magnetism and radiant personality only add to her remarkable success." Not the least important feature of the Frank Silver regards as the greatest touring orchestra in America. Every conceivable type of jazz syncopation is played by this popular band, and it is said that it is impossible not to fall a victim to the swaying and perfect rhythms of the "Bananas" boys, and to the phenominut dancing of the "Cameo Girls," another and highly important feature of the performance.

Rub It On For Deep Chest Colds

ABSORBED like a liniment and at the same time INHALED as a vapor, Vicks gets immediately into congested, inflamed air passages

NEVER NEGLECT A CHEST COLD. If allowed to "hang on" it means lung tissue weakened, air passages predisposed to infection. There is then danger of pneumonia and pneumonia is now more deadly than tuberculosis.

When a cold goes down deep, with soreness, tight breathing and a heavy, hollow cough, apply wet towels over throat and chest to open the pores of the skin.

Massage briskly with Vicks for five minutes, then spread on thickly and cover with two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths. Leave the clothing loose about the neck so that the vapors arising may be freely inhaled. These vapors, inhaled with each breath, carry the medication directly to the affected parts.

At the same time, the penetrative and stimulative effect of Vicks through the skin increases the circulation of the blood throughout the chest region, and thus helps to relieve the tightness and congestion.

VICKS IS A BOON TO MOTHERS because it is an "outside" treatment. There is no dosing to upset a child's delicate stomach. You just rub it on.

Vicks is a combination in salve form of the old, time-tested remedies for colds—Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus and other volatile oils. Being externally applied, it can be used as freely and as often as desired, even on the youngest child, with perfect safety.

When the kiddies come in wet and "sniffling" Vicks is applied to prevent colds. An application at bedtime will usually prevent a night attack of croup.

Just as good, of course, for the cold troubles of adults—sore throat, tonsillitis, head and chest colds, bronchitis, coughs.

Made at first in the back room of a little drug store in North Carolina, Vicks has so consistently demonstrated its worth that now it is more widely used than any other remedy of its kind.

How Vicks Should Be Used

For Spasmodic Croup, Children's Colds.—Rub Vicks over the throat and chest until the difficult breathing is relieved, then spread on thickly and cover with a hot flannel cloth. One application at bedtime usually prevents a night attack of croup.

For Head Colds, Asthma, Catarrh, Hay Fever.—Vicks should be melted in a spoon and the vapors inhaled, or a little can be applied up the nostrils and snuffed well back up the head.

For Deep Chest Colds, Sore Throat, Tonsillitis, Bronchitis, Coughs.—Rub Vicks briskly over the throat and chest. In severe cases first rub the skin to open the pores (see directions). Then spread on thickly and cover with one or two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths. Leave the bedclothes loose about the neck so that the vapors may be freely inhaled. If the cough is annoying, a small piece the size of a pea can be swallowed every two or three hours.

Above is a panoramic view of the field which is now in the limelight as a result of the Senate's probe of the conditions under which this portion of the naval oil reserve was leased to private interests. The Teapot Dome field is in central Wyoming, mainly in Natrona county.

BLACK MAGIC AND ANCIENT SUPERSTITION PITTED AGAINST MODERN SCIENCE IN MURDER MYSTERY

MRS. FANNIE COSTANZA (LEFT) AND MRS. EMMA COLAVITO, CHARGED WITH MURDER IN CLEVELAND'S SECOND POISONING CASE TO GROW-OUT OF BELIEF IN POTENCY OF "BLACK MAG-

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 21.—Black magic sorcery are again to figure in a Cleveland murder trial.

And hundreds of superstitious believers in sorcery are eagerly waiting to see if Emma Colavito is again enabled to stand trial for murder and go to free.

Her "black magic," they insist, retarded in the woman escaping conviction in the death of Dan Kaber, wealthy Cleveland publisher. And the same powers, they intimate, will bring her safely through trial on charge of poisoning Marino Costanza—if it does not prevent her arrest.

"Black Magic"—which the authorities contend was a virulent poison—caused the death of Costanza, police say. They charge his wife, Mrs. Fannie Costanza, hired the Cavalito woman to rid herself of Costanza paying her $500 from the dead man's insurance policy. Charged with murder, the wife is held in jail, while police seek Mrs. Colavito.

A story weird is revealed by the nativistic spell possessed by Mrs. Colavito over hundreds of persons. Mrs. Costanza, who sought her aid, is an Italian woman in poor circumstances. But Mrs. Dan Kaber, who is serving a life sentence in connection with her wealthy husband's murder, was equally firm in belief in this woman's "black magic."

Emma Colavito was tried, charged with having given Dan Kaber poison in his soup, and then, the poison not being swift enough to suit Mrs. Kaber, hiring two assassins who entered the house at night and drove an ice pick again and again into the sick man, while Kaber's own stepdaughter played the piano to drown his agonized cries.

Mrs. Colavito said she gave Kaber only harmless ingredients. The law contents she furnished poison. The "sorceress" went free.

Instead of destroying her, following, this served but to increase the implicit faith of those who sought her advice.

In this twentieth century, greater and greater grew her business in "love potions," such as were sold in the middle ages. Her practice as a healer of the sick through the medium of evil spirits also grew.

The law is searching for Mrs. Colavito.

And, should she be found, the battle between legal jurisprudence and dark age sorcery promises to attract even greater attention than the celebrated Kaber case.

LOVE SONG OF CHARLES M. SCHWAB'S WIFE GIVES SINGER AN OPPORTUNITY

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Just a song at twilight—

but it spelled romance for a struggling engineer named Charles M. Schwab and an unassuming girl named Eranina Dinkley.

They were itself into those events which raised Charles M. Schwab to be one of the great millionaires of the world and gave to Eranina Dinkley the world's most beautiful coloration of jewels.

And finally it reached out and brought into a childless home a girl who was finding the road to fame and fortune pretty rocky.

The girl is Merle Alcock who was brought up by the Metropolitan Opera many the other day. All singers are of later expect to make the metropolis. Maybe Merle Alcock will have made it anyway.

And the road was considerably eased because Mrs. Charles M. Schwab, remembering a certain song in 1887, reached out a helping hand.

It is the first hint of the real life in the life of a woman who consistently kept herself away from the public. This is the way Alcock tells it:

Schwab was an engineer for steel company back in 1883 when on occasion to call upon a Mr. in Loreto, Pa. In the living a girl was singing. It was a song—the kind that music gives their pupils.

Schwab paused by the door, and music and had himself learn the piano. He went in and Eranina Dinkley. If he might say for her while she sang. Eranina said he might.

That he wanted to come again but Eranina would only let come when her professor had a new song to learn. A month later they were married.

Prosperity is a pleasant thing, but Mrs. Charles M. Schwab found that it leaves very little time for the cultivation of one's musical talents. She sang the old songs less and less.

An organ was set up in the great stone mansion at Riverside Drive and 73rd street and Archer Gibson was regularly employed to play upon it. Artists of the concert stage were invited to sing.

Then one night back in 1916 there was introduced a girl, dark-haired and a little frightened. She was Merle Alcock and somebody had just told her she'd never be a success because she hadn't any personality.

Merle Alcock sang and Mrs. Charles

M. Schwab, listening, forgot the stone mansion and the expensive organ and the dinner guests. She saw instead a modest living room back in Loreto, Pa., and a girl with her heart in her throat and a young man bending over the music.

"My dear," she told Merle Alcock afterward, "your voice sounds just as mine did when I was a girl."

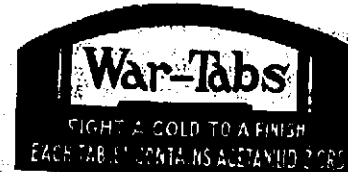

For with Miss Alcock became the protégée of Mrs. Schwab. She will do many of the things that Mrs. Schwab might have done if she hadn't been the wife of a millionaire.

All of which is the story of how a little song reached through the years and made three people happy.

WOMAN, DEMANDING EQUAL RIGHTS WITH MAN POINTS TO LAWS DISCRIMINATING AGAINST HER

What Women Are Denied

When opponents of the equal rights amendment assert that the so-called discriminatory legislation is actually protective legislation, the National Women's Party produces volumes of evidence to show that American women are denied:

- Equal control of their children.
- Equal control of their property.
- Equal control of their earnings.
- Equal rights to make contracts.
- Equal citizenship rights.
- Equal inheritance rights.
- Equal control of national, state and local government.
- Equal opportunities in schools and universities.
- Equal opportunities in government service.
- Equal opportunities in professions and industries.
- Equal pay for equal work.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—To the militant feminist man is a villain. He is accused of a gigantic conspiracy against woman, forbidding her to enjoy the privileges that are his.

When the feminists, under the banner of the National Women's Party, started their fight for equal rights they thought they could convince man with the logic of their claims. But in some 40 legislatures last year the lawmakers displayed little sympathy for the plea against discriminatory laws, recognizing that those laws were protective.

So, proceeding on the premise that man is an unreasonable sort of creature, the women are gathering evidence to prove their argument.

Laws Codified

For this work of combing every state code and constitution for what the party calls "discriminatory legislation," and codifying all under that head, the party chose Miss Emma Wold, long connected with suffragist activities.

Miss Wold first decided to become an attorney, the better to understand the intricacies of law. She studied law nights, while her party duties kept her busy during the days. Now she is a member of the Supreme Court Bar in the District of Columbia.

Her search for discriminatory legislation has resulted in a mass of volumes upon volumes of such laws.

In various states, she found, fathers have complete control over their children, the earnings of a wife legally belong to the husband, women cannot serve on juries, divorce laws are partial to men, fathers can will away children from mothers, married women are classed with children and insane as unable to contract on their own responsibility, and the husband can collect money damages when his

Wife's Demand

"We want equal rights," says the woman. "We don't want to suffer handicaps placed upon us by law and custom. We don't want to be barred from any industry open to man."

"We know there are some things beyond our strength, but there need be no law about it."

So Congress is asked to adopt the Equal Rights Amendment.

"Men and women shall have equal rights throughout the United States and every place subject to its jurisdiction."

That is all.

his youth, made his escape from the Jacksonboro Jail recently and is still a fugitive.

GAYLOR NAMED JELICO CHIEF

Succeeds George W. Heatherly, Twice Wounded Seriously—Officials Listed

JELICO, Tenn., Jan. 31.—At a meeting of the new city council last week, Joe Gaylor was elected city marshal and J. C. Rogers assistant, only the two being balloted on. The salary of the marshal was fixed at $125 a month, and of the assistant at $110.

Mr. Gaylor succeeds Chief George W. Heatherly, who was almost killed when in a fight with run runners, and who as he was recuperating after a long stay in a Knoxville hospital was wounded, all but fatally, by Albert Perkins, brother of two run runners slain during the fight in which Heatherly was wounded the first time, after being sentenced to spend five years in a state reformatory on account of
